— FOREWORD —

The high school period is a time of transformation from adolescence into maturity. It is filled with the triumphs and frustrations common only to this particular phase of our lives.

All of the various emotions which we have experienced during this time may be compared to the four seasons of the year. We often felt the winter of impersonality, isolation, and injustice. We experienced the springtime found in warm friendships, the birth of new philosophies, and the unclouded enthusiasm of youth. The summertimes were marked by feelings of exuberance, vitality, and joys of living. Our last days at Wachusett, especially, are represented by fall. We have gathered together the knowledge gained in past years. We now look back with nostalgia at the days past and gaze into the future with promises of new springtimes to come.

Another expression of ourselves may be found in our music. The songs that are so popular among high school students are actually concrete examples of our own ideas, our emotions, our protestations. They express aloud the abstract feelings which we experience within ourselves. The harsh, discordant, and even frantic sounds of some songs echo the same feelings of frustration, rebellion, and confusion that so characterize our lives. The vibrant, carefree, and more harmonious tunes represent our appreciation of merely being alive; of being free. They represent our youth in general. The softer, more melancholy type of song, almost a lament, illustrates the disillusionment we so often must face, our unfulfilled quest for truth and reality; the search into our own minds to try and discover ourselves.

The 1967 yearbook is, itself, a third symbol of this stage of our lives. It includes the comparison of the four seasons and the music of our times to our four years of high school, yet it is more than just that; it represents another vital factor in the formation of our character. The following pages are filled with memories; memories of our school, our teachers, our friends. More than that, these pages reflect four years of our lives; four years that will never be forgotten.

MR. JOHN F. KANE

DEDICATION

It is a truly refreshing experience to be taught by a man who shows a genuine enthusiasm for his work. A teacher with the power to draw out the best from his students is one who deserves a great deal of credit, for it is not an easy task to accomplish.

It is even more to his credit that such a teacher who devotes so much of himself to his profession should find time to enter into extracurricular activities. This teacher shows the same enthusiasm for school events and activities as he does for the teaching of mathematics. His abundance of school spirit is contagious among students and faculty alike.

Although not all of us have had the opportunity to become personally acquainted with him, most everyone has felt his presence. He's the "big teacher who plays with electric trains," the one who has given nicknames to half the senior class, the man with the booming laugh and the exuberant personality. He is a well known figure among our faculty, and one whose talents and personality are appreciated by all.

In admiration of this man, we, the class of 1967, dedicate our yearbook to Mr. John F. Kane. Although it is a small token of all he has given us, we hope that this will somehow signify the gratification we have experienced through knowing him, both as a teacher and as a friend.

TO THE CLASS OF 1967

Because of the very short time I have been a member of the Wachusett organization, actually fewer months than you have years, words of greeting would be, perhaps, more appropriate than a farewell.

I like your school and the good work you are doing here. I see and admire evidence of your critical appraisal of the goals and regulations of our society and your understandable desire to make your own decisions. Sound decision making will always be your greatest challenge and most rewarding activity. I believe your years at Wachusett will help you.

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE CLASS OF 1967

Challenging times lie ahead for you. After you graduate from this school, whether you continue your education, go directly to work, or enter a branch of the armed services, you will find numerous problems confronting you. If you have used to advantage your four years in this fine school, you need have no fear of problems. By now, you should be able to resolve them to your satisfaction. Rest assured that you have been well prepared for whatever the future may bring. Face the world with confidence.

My very best wishes for a happy and successful future.

Very truly yours,

Neil T. Skillings

PRINCIPAL

TO THE CLASS OF 1967

Your future lies before you and your hearts must be filled with mingled feeling of joy and regret: joy at the prospect of trying the road that lies so temptingly before you; regret at the thoughts of leaving Wachusett and all she represents in ideals and friendships.

This day in your life has been made possible only through the ungrudging sacrifices of your parents and the untiring efforts of your teachers who, together, have hopefully bent the twig as they would have the tree grow.

Good luck in the future.

Class History

The day was September 7, 1963, the time was 7:45, the place was Wachusett Regional High School. Arriving at the gleaming glass expanse of the general office, we searched frantically for our posted homeroom and locker numbers. Each of us was equipped with the necessary freshman utensils: one fire engine red magic magnetic notebook, three well-sharpened yellow pencils from Mom, and a Wonderbread ruler. The typical first-day of school attire for the girls was billowing flowery shirtwaist dresses, new flats, peppermint pink lipstick, bamboo ring pocketbooks, and cute little layered hair cuts received the day before. The boys wore black loafers, white athletic socks, chinos, madras shirts, still creased from the package, and unbuttoned at the second button, undershirt showing. The helpful sophomores directed us to the smoking room and the elevator.

Our first year featured the Freshman Get Acquainted Dance where the Student Council had a good time. Other memorable events of the year included the bomb scares and the Great Lunch Strike.

On returning to school the next September, we experienced our new-found status as sophomores. Consequently, we, in turn, directed the incoming freshmen to the elevator and the smoking room. Memorable events of this year were Mr. Hoyer's famous pass to Herb's. This was also the year when we experienced that wonderful culinary delight, Pineapple Pork Pizza. Our sophomore dance went over as well as our freshman dance.

As we entered our junior year, we experienced that feeling of superiority which accompanies every upperclassman, tangibly expressed in our shiny new class rings. This was also the year of The Goggles and the fashionable plastic apron. This year's dance was appropriately named The Junior Jive with the Free Lance Five. We wound up the year in the dazzle of our first prom, "East of Eden."

Senior year was something special. On the first day of that year many of us found ourselves walking to school. However, one person was still on wheels, four to a foot. Another innovation of our class was the addition of male cheerleaders; beanies, megaphones, and all. Our class dance was again an overwhelming success, or so we were told. This was the year of big decisions; where to park our cars, who to vote for in Who's Who, how to get out of homeroom on a late lunch pass, what night to see "Junior Miss," who to invite to the Senior Prom, whether we could spare tickets for Uncle Alphonse and Aunt Henrietta for our graduation, and what to do with the rest of our lives

Somewhere classmates, we will meet again,
To recall schooldays and the goodtimes we had then.
Classes, sports and proms, they were all such fun,
It's a shame that now, our schooldays are done.

"Junior Miss" by Chodorov and Fields, in a series of amusing episodes, reveals a thirteen year-old girl's efforts to reform the adult world. With the proverbial "best of intentions," she causes one misunderstanding after another until the situation looks absolutely hopeless. However, as in all good comedies, the end justifies the means.

Who could ever forget the typical irate father (Jimmy Harrington) or his incorrigible daughter (Jean Perry)? Or Uncle Willis and Ellen (George Parker and Cindy Pierce) whose unexpected romance shocked everyone but Judi? Or the effervescence of Fuffy Adams (Dianne Johnson) in contrast to the pseudosophistication of Lois (Marilyn Ballantyne)? Or the blustering businessman (David Austin)? But whatever you remember, don't forget, "There'll always be a Hilda."

The first two weeks of freshman gym class.
Long afternoons in the Yearbook Office.
Those precious minutes interrupted by a fire drill.
Waiting outside during Bomb Scares.
Steve Krikorian's 42 saves when we beat Auburn.
Freshman archery in full view of the cafeteria.
The way the gym's transformed the night of a prom.
Getting caught with a Newsweek magazine in your Math Analysis book.
The Civil Defense course with Mr. Roentgen and his wife, Millie.
Mr. Lengas' nicknames for everything.
